

Abstract

The invention relates to a casing for an electronic device, the casing being produced from a heat-resistant, flame-retardant thermoplastic by an injection-molding process. This thermoplastic is a polyamide-based plastic with halogen-free flame retardancy.